

A an the SNAP

Ban Ki Moon is _____ Secretary General of the United Nations	_____ suburb	_____ important exam	_____ Wales
_____ Pacific Ocean	_____ hit movie	He's _____ Englishman	_____ Scotland
_____ River Thames	_____ bestseller	I'm _____ only child	He's _____ English
_____ Amazon	When I was _____ kid	He was in _____ accident	_____ Mount Everest
_____ English Channel	Just _____ fad	He lives on _____ island	_____ pollution
_____ USA	He's _____ New Zealander	Have _____ eye on	_____ human rights
_____ EU	Have _____ lie in	Ride on _____ elephant	Have _____ lunch _____ centre of town	Go on _____ daytrip	He's _____ honest man	Go to _____ school _____ suburbs	Meet up with _____ few mates	_____ hour lesson	Travel by _____ car
_____ Himalayas	_____ beer or two	He works as _____ assistant	By _____ bus
_____ Alps	I spent _____ fortune	He trained as _____ architect	_____ Kilimanjaro
_____ Universal Declaration of Human Rights	I went for _____ drive	_____ obvious mistake	_____ punk music

One of _____ biggest	I'd like to buy _____ bigger car	_____ unlucky man	_____ Lake Titicaca _____ very smallest	_____ good weekend	He told me _____ epic story	_____ Lake Superior
He's _____ breadwinner in our family	Have _____ nap	_____ epidemic of flu has started	_____ Mars
_____ Earth	Half _____ dozen	He's _____ agricultural engineer	_____ East Asia

Instructions

Photocopy and cut up one pack of cards per three or four students

Students work together to put the cards into four columns by whether they take the, a, an or --- (no article)

Students mix up the cards, deal them out, and play SNAP (SNAP being when the two cards take the same article)