

Problem hotels pairwork (Travel and Tourism/ some and any)

Student A

Your partner is someone who is looking for a hotel for their honeymoon and has phoned your hotel to find out about it. Answer questions from your partner about your hotel and tick any of the things on the list below that they find out. Only tick off the problem when they have found out exactly the problem there, including how many. If they ask about something that is not written there, you can make up any answer you like, preferably something good.

There aren't any towels

There isn't any glass in the windows

There are lots of cockroaches

There are only a few towels

There is only one toilet in the hotel

There isn't much hot water

There aren't any lifts and there are lots of stairs

There are a few stains on the bedroom wall

There are lots of leaks in the roof

There aren't any car parking spaces.

Correct the grammar mistakes

Continue with your own ideas for problems (write them down)

Decide which the worst hotel is

Rank the problems- decide which the 10 most serious and the ten least serious problems are

Decide the 10 most important factors of a good hotel

Negotiate- Student A is a husband who wants to save money and Student B is a wife who wants to splash out. Decide together what kind of hotel you are going to go to for your honeymoon.

Take turns complaining about the bad things above and giving excuses etc.

Problem hotels pairwork (Travel and Tourism/ some and any)

Student B

Your partner is someone who is looking for a hotel for their honeymoon and has phoned your hotel to find out about it. Answer questions from your partner about your hotel and tick any of the things on the list below that they find out. Only tick off the problem when they have found out exactly the problem there, including how many. If they ask about something that is not written there, you can make up any answer you like, preferably something good.

There is only one single bed

There aren't any hangars in the closet

There are lots of families with young children staying there

There isn't any English speaking staff

There have been lots of things stolen from guests' rooms recently.

There are only a few tables in the breakfast room.

The hotel manager and the receptionist only speak a few words of English.

There is only electricity for a few hours a day.

There isn't any transport from the airport to the hotel.

There are lots of mosquitoes

Correct the grammar mistakes

Continue with your own ideas for problems (write them down)

Decide which the worst hotel is

Rank the problems- decide which the 10 most serious and the ten least serious problems are

Decide the 10 most important factors of a good hotel

Negotiate- Student A is a husband who wants to save money and Student B is a wife who wants to splash out. Decide together what kind of hotel you are going to go to for your honeymoon.

Take turns complaining about the bad things above and giving excuses etc.

(This photocopiable worksheet is designed to tie in with Face2Face Pre-Intermediate, but is suitable for any class)